

Bernini is a gorgeous full grain leather with a naked, pure aniline finish that emphasizes the product's natural characteristics and supple feel. Produced on the finest European hides available, this leather is simply dyed for color without any additional pigments necessary. After the aniline dyeing, a light savage, or marbling effect, is applied to the hides to accentuate the grain and provide a greater sense of depth. The end result is a rich, complex leather that will become more beautiful with time and use as it softens and wears in.
