

With its graceful, undulating wave design, Edris 1954 evokes the natural cadence of the Palm Springs desert—shifting sands, rolling rock formations and wide-open landscapes. Named for the iconic Edris House, designed in 1954 by modernist architect E. Stewart Williams, this fabric embodies the spirit of the desert design ethos, where stone, glass and wood merge effortlessly with their arid surroundings. Its soft curves suggest both serenity and strength, making it a versatile choice for upholstery that feels timeless, organic and distinctly Palm Springs.
